Title: PENTBOMB

Synopsis: Results of Analysis of United Airlines (UAL) passenger records for flights scheduled for 9/11/01

Administrative: Rapid Start Number CG-1927

Enclosure(s): 1) Spread sheet of specific UAL Passengers for 9/11/01 flights sorted alphabetically 2) Spread sheet of specific UAL Passengers for 9/11/01 flights sorted by flight number

Details: A review of UAL's computerized records for flights scheduled for 9/11/01 disclosed approximately 239,000 passengers were scheduled to fly on UAL and UAL associated flights that day. A manual review of these names disclosed in excess of a 1000 names which were similar to the names of the hijackers.

These records were then analyzed for flight information for the names identified for further investigation. The results of this analysis have been documented on the attached spread sheets. The first spread sheet sorts the passengers alphabetically by name. The second spread sheet sorts the passengers by flight.

The analysis of UAL passenger records for flights on 9/11/01 disclosed that passengers had also booked flights scheduled for before and after 9/11/01. Whereas this information may have investigative value, these flights are reflected on the enclosed spread sheets as well.

Re: 265A-NY-280350-CG , 09/28/2001

FBI Chicago will place these spread sheets on the FBI's Intranet system to allow access by field offices requiring this information for further investigation and analysis.

The UAL computerized records contain Passenger Name Records (PNR's) for each passenger on 9/11/01. These PNR's contain specific information about the passengers including but not limited to: credit card numbers, addresses, and phone numbers. The information obtained from UAL's PNR's is stored in an ASCII text format. As such, obtaining the information from a passenger's PNR is difficult because specific passenger information is mixed in with UAL's other text information. However, passenger information can be located if one looks in the proper field.

Chicago was able to extract the PNR's for the 1100 names on the spread sheet from UAL's computerized data base. Whereas a printed version of the PNR's for these 1100 names would be well in excess of 25,000 pages of paper, Chicago is maintaining the PNR's for the 1100 names on a compact disc in a computerized format. If necessary Chicago can provide a printed copy of a PNR for a specific name on the spread sheet upon request, however.

If necessary, Chicago can also search the entire PNR data base of 239,000 passengers for a specific name, address, telephone number, or credit card number upon request.
